Fewest Vacancies Since 1959

The 7,264 teacher and administrative vacancies reported to the Placement Office in 1971 are the fewest number of vacancies received since 6,982 vacancies were reported in 1959. The vacancies reported this year dropped about one-third from last year's 11,254. This pattern of decline was consistent for all teaching fields except industrial arts, science, reading and guidance.

EIU Placement Report

Too Many Teachers?

The oversupply of educational personnel has received much publicity, and the reasons for the glut have been stated and restated: the nation's economic crisis, end of the baby boom, local budgetary restrictions, minimal staff turnover, and the failure of teacher education programs to control admissions.

All of these factors have contributed to an employment situation which clearly indicates that there are more individuals currently trained to teach than there are appropriate positions available.

STAFFING TRENDS

1. There is a shortage of workers for special education programs. This need for educators to work with the handicapped and/or exceptional child includes teachers, therapists, and other specialists.

2. There are staff deficiencies in the vocational-technical education and industrial arts fields. Initiation and expansion of vocational-technical education programs has brought about a substantial need for instructors with appropriate backgrounds and training to work at the high school level and in some occupational specialties with our community colleges.

3. There is an indicated need for instructors in new and developing curricular areas such as environmental education, cultural studies, bilingual education, and adult education. Numerous questions, however, arise regarding the type of preparation which individuals filling these positions should possess.

4. Social studies and history teachers dominate the oversupply ranks, followed by language arts and foreign language teachers.

5. Other than the early childhood speciality, current supplies of elementary teachers appear adequate to meet immediate needs. Elementary specialists such as physical education teachers are in demand. School administrators desire to recruit additional male teachers to work in the elementary setting.

6. Prospective teachers will have to look to smaller urban and rural areas for employment. Competition for teaching positions in the large cities and nearby suburbs appears to be extremely keen. There is a need for more sensitive educators to work with inner-city youngsters.

7. It is apparent that candidates for teaching positions now and in the future will find the keenest of competition with positions going to the strongest candidates: bright, creative individuals who show evidence of a strong desire to work with young people.

DATA SUMMARY

Eastern Illinois University had 1,191 teacher certification degree graduates in 1971. Two hundred eighty-eight candidates received the Master of Science in Education degree and 14 candidates completed the requirements for the Specialist in Education degree.

The number of teacher certification degree graduates increased 15% over the preceding year and 113% over five years ago.

A total of 1,051 schools contacted

1951 Versus 1971

The 139 bachelors degree graduates employed in teaching positions in 1951 represented 56 per cent of the 249 graduates. This is comparable to the 1971 percentage figure of 55 per cent based on 659 teacher certification degree graduates securing employment in the class numbering 1,191. It is significant to note that the increase in the number of placements reflects a 474 per cent increase over this 20-year span of time.

the Placement Office (one or more times) by correspondence, phone, or office visits. Seven hundred sixty-five Illinois school districts contacted the Placement Office on one or more occasions. School officials from Illinois conducted 863 candidate interviews in the Placement Office; 161 additional candidate interviews were scheduled for school officials from other states.

Teaching positions were accepted by 19 (55%) of the current teacher certification degree graduates. There were only 59 fewer teacher certification degree graduates placed than a year ago but there were 144 more graduates to be placed over last year. The average salary for inexperienced teachers of the Class of 1971 was $7,454, an increase of $279 over the average of 1970.

Other factors affecting the number available to fill the demand for teachers were: graduate school (122-10%); marriage (186-15%); other vocations (103-9%). Military service took 45 graduates or approximately 4%.

Business (industry) placement activities paralleled education placement in an equally tight job market. Five hundred sixty-one graduates received Bachelor of Science, Bachelor of Arts, and Bachelor of Science in Business degrees, which is 32% of those graduates awarded the Baccalaureate degree. This year representatives from business and industry visited the office on 125 occasions for 1,544 campus interviews scheduled for candidates seeking employment. The average salary for all business placements was $8,509 which is $59 below the figure for last year.

Approximately one-half of the non-education bachelor degree graduates earned the BSB degree. The number of majors for the BSB graduates are as follows: Accounting 62; Finance 17; Management 106; Marketing 68; Secretarial Science 6. The number and percent of these graduates employed in business may give some indication of job market potential. The number employed in business by percentage rank order: Accounting (35-69%) Secretarial Science (4-67%); Management (46-43%); Marketing (23-34%); Finance (3-18%).

Factors significantly affecting placement of Bachelor of Science in Business graduates were: military service (17-7%); graduate school (24-10%); married (6-2%); not reported (40-16%); unemployed (14-6%). Data on the Bachelor of Science and Bachelor of Arts graduates were not available at press time.

Supply of Beginning Teachers as Percent
Of Normal Demand, 1952 to 1979, According To Present Trends

Vocational Teachers, Yes . . . Guidance Counselors, No

Based on an NEA research report the national picture on teacher demand indicates that in greatest demand are teachers of trade, industrial, vocational and technical subjects; elementary physical and health education; elementary music teachers; librarian; mathematics; special education; and, natural and physical sciences.

Nationally, the lowest demands are evident among counselors; elementary foreign language teachers; home economics; high school teachers of physical and health education; business education; social sciences; and secondary art. The NEA reports the following ranking of teaching fields:

- 1 Trade, Industrial, Vocational, Technical
- 2 Physical & Health Education, Elementary
- 3 Music, Elementary
- 4 Librarian
- 5 Mathematics
- 6 Special Education
- 7 Natural and Physical Sciences
- 8 Art, Elementary
- 9 Elementary Total
- 10 Ungraded Total, Secondary
- 11 Elementary, Regular Instruction
- 12 English, Language Arts Total
- 13 Industrial Arts
- 14 Distributive Education
- 15 Secondary Total
- 16 Agriculture
- 17 Foreign Languages, Secondary
- 18 Music, Secondary
- 19 Art, Secondary
- 20 Social Sciences

- 22 Physical & Health Education, High School
- 23 Home Economics
- 24 Foreign Languages, Elementary
- 25 Guidance Counselor

Generally, demand is expected to decline in the future as the employment demand in 1971 appears to be lower than at any time in the past twenty years.

By 1978 the annual number of graduates prepared to teach (397,000) could be three times the 1961 number (129,188). For the first time in recent history the five-year outlook is for more teachers than we need to attain a minimum standard of quality.

Illinois State University's Placement Office has projected the teacher demand-supply data through 1980. This projection indicates that the year 1971 was the peak year for production of teachers in Illinois (approximately 18,200). It was also the peak year for numbers of students in public schools (2,261,916). From 1971 until 1980 the number of teachers prepared will decline (to approximately 12,000) and students in the public schools will decline (to approximately 2,107,734).

The report from ISU indicates that Illinois had an over-supply of current graduates prepared to teach of 9,460 (approximately) in 1971, and that the over-supply of newly-prepared teachers will be 3,789 (approximately) by 1980.

Thus the yearly over-supply will diminish; however, if the cumulative effect of the period 1971-1980 is considered, an over-supply of some 70,885 (approximately) teachers could be realized by 1980 in Illinois.

Projections can present a dismal picture for the demand for teachers. However, many variables, such as the effect of the early retirement act, an up-swing of the economy, and the guidance of high school students toward other degrees than education, can affect any long range projection. An over-supply of teachers exists now, and will continue to some degree well into the future.

On the EIU campus, the Placement Office has found 1971 a year of over-supply. In 1970, 69 per cent of the current graduates with B.S. in Education degrees reported having teaching positions. 1971 finds

Director of Placement*

55.3 per cent of the current graduates prepared to teach reported in teaching positions.

The greatest demand for EIU graduates appears to be in the following fields: Speech Correction (Teaching 43% - Graduate School 57%); Special Education (82%); Physical Sciences (83%); Junior High Education (74%); Music 82%) and Math (65%).

Some fields now in low demand for current graduates prepared to teach were those with less than fifty percent of the graduates reporting teaching positions. The following are such fields of low demand for 1971: Botany (27%); Business (40%); History (33%); Home economics (44%); Social Sciences (33%); Speech (33%); Theatre Arts (14%); Zoology (42%).

Placement Still A Personalized Service

In an era of mass production, burgeoning numbers of graduates, and computerized living, Eastern's Placement Office still emphasizes personal contact and individualized services—both to graduates and to employers.

Dr. James Knott, director of placement, notes for example, that either he or Robert Jones, the assistant director, has a personal 30-minute interview with every student who requests a placement conference. "Actually," Knott confesses, "my interviews with students usually run longer, since I have a tendency to digress."

In addition to this regularly-scheduled interview, additional sessions are arranged for students who have special requests or problems, or who merely want to discuss the job market. "We get to know them pretty well if they are in two or three times," says Knott.

At the same time, the director laments the fact that increasing enrollments at Eastern have ended the days when he knew every senior personally. "Ten years ago I knew nearly every student, even before they had formal contact with the Placement Office," he explains. "Now it is just impossible for me to know every senior."

Even so, he and Jones make a concerted effort to become as well informed as possible about every candidate, and they seem to remember a significant number by both name and face. A photo of each candidate, collected from the yearbook staff, helps. Although photos are no longer a part of official credentials because of duplication difficulties and possible discrimination rulings, Knott finds that photos help him and Jones to remember individuals better.

Knott sees his job as one of matching suitable candidates with suitable jobs, and emphasizes the fact that he and Jones give honest evaluations of candidates when dealing with prospective employers. "We have to maintain our credibility with employers," he explains.

Evaluations of candidates by Knott and Jones are based on their own interviews with candidates, on student teaching reports and other official records, on contacts with faculty members who know the candidates, and, in the case of experienced candidates, on contacts with previous employers.

Knott, who has been at Eastern since 1957, and Jones, who has been at the university since 1963, have the advantage of knowing a great many members of the faculty personally. Thus they are usually able to get candid evaluations from faculty members, and they have gradually come to rely on some evaluators more than others.

Knott came to Eastern as a coordinator of student teachers in business education, following service as a high school teacher, as a staff member at the Vocational-Technical Institute at SIU, as coordinator of the Office Occupations Program at Bloomington, and as a methods analyst for State Farm Life Insurance.

Jones came to Eastern as a coordinator of student teachers in English, following service as a high school teacher and principal. He served as acting director of placement in 1966-67 while Knott was on sabbatical leave.

Thus both Knott and Jones have a background of public school work, as well as involvement with Eastern's student teaching program. As a result of this background and their placement experience, they are quite familiar with public school and business needs, including acquaintance with specific personnel and individual situations in the schools and businesses in the area.

Knott feels that the Placement Office has a duty to each candidate to find out and explain as much about a given job opening as possible, since the goal is to match candidate and position.

"A given individual may do quite well or quite poorly in one situation," he explains, "then do the opposite the following year where the environment is somehow different. Such things as personalities of supervisors and type of community could make big differences in job satisfaction — both from the standpoint of the applicant and from the standpoint of

768 Alumni Re-register For Placement

EIU alumni are eligible for the services of the Placement Office, and during the 1971 placement year (Oct. 1, 1970 - Sept. 30, 1971) 768 alumni re-registered for placement services. Two hundred seventy-four found new positions.

A fee of $5 is charged for the registration of each alumnus; thereafter the alumni candidates are handled in exactly the same manner as current graduates.

The educational employment situation has changed so drastically in the last two years that seeking new teaching positions has become a completely different type of operation. A definite campaign is critical for acquiring a new position.

Teachers seeking positions must keep an up-dated set of placement papers with current experience recommendations. It is imperative to be as mobile as possible if seeking a teaching position. Three or four years ago it was possible to sit back and wait for a position to develop in a certain geographic location. In today's market the candidates most likely to find teaching positions are those who can go where the position openings occur.

Any teacher planning a change in position should realize that an early campaign to locate a different teaching position is more essential under current supply-demand conditions than ever. Letters of inquiry sent to the desired geographic area are also effective. Many schools are receiving so many "write-ins" that advertising a vacancy is not necessary.

A new approach to the letter of inquiry is to attach a resume with the letter. School officials are beginning to pre-screen candidates before requesting credentials; therefore a good resume can be effective in getting the candidate invited for an interview.

Any alumnus seeking a position in education should confer with the Placement Office staff and utilize such Placement Office services as open listings, vacancy bulletins, and placement credentials. Such a program does not guarantee a successful campaign, but certainly should enhance the chances.

New Policy On Admissions Announced

A revised admissions policy for Eastern has been announced by Dr. Sam Taber, dean, Student Academic Services.

The new policy, effective with the 1972 summer quarter, includes:

(1) A beginning freshman ranking in the upper one-half of his high school graduating class, or having a composite American College Test (ACT) standard score of 22 will be admitted in good standing in any quarter; and

(2) a student ranking in the upper two-thirds of his high school graduating class will be admitted in good standing to summer quarter only, regardless of ACT score.

Taber said the major departure from the previous policy involves the fall quarter. Under that policy, high school students had to rank in the upper 40 percent of their graduating classes to be considered for fall quarter admission.

Football Wrapup

Gustafson, Tassio 'Outstanding'

Record-setting quarterback Ron Gustafson and defensive leader Chuck Tassio were named Outstanding Players for 1971 by consensus of the Eastern coaching staff after the Panthers closed out a 4-6 grid campaign.

Head coach Clyde Biggers said Gustafson, a senior from Princeton, was selected Offensive Player of the Year on the basis of his record shattering performance, and that Tassio, senior co-captain from Villa Park, was named Defensive Player of the Year for his leadership in tackles and contribution in calling defensive signals.

Gustafson, Eastern's all-time offensive leader, owns nine entries in the Panther record book and capped a stellar collegiate career by passing for 1745 yards and 13 touchdowns as a senior. He owns all the school's records for yards gained passing and total offense.

Tassio, inside linebacker, accounted for the most tackles during 1971 and won first team honors on the NAIA All-District 20 team, one of three Panthers to capture first team berths. Also selected for first team status by coaches of the 28 member schools in the district were Eastern safety man Mike Grier on the defensive unit and running back Ken Werner on offense.

Other picks on the All-District offensive unit were Gustafson and sophomore flanker Willie White, who set season records for pass receiving. Both received honorable mention.

Edging Gustafson for first team honors at quarterback was Illinois Wesleyan's Wally Kistenfeger, the country's top passer in NAIA Division I.

Werner, of Des Plaines, who served as co-captain with Tassio, ended his collegiate career on the bench

Sporty's Destroyed

An early-morning fire Jan. 16 destroyed the Sportsman's Lounge at 723 Seventh St. Sporty's, opened in 1959, contained three bars and Poor Richard's restaurant. Richard Hahn, '63, owner of the popular student night spot, said the loss would be in the "$100,000 category." Mrs. Hahn (Karen), '63 (MA '70), teaches English at Martinsville HS.

with a leg injury but before bowing out set new school rushing records. The 190-pound ball carrier ground out 740 yards this season to set one new school standard and raised his three-year career total to 1526 yards for another school mark. He was Eastern's leading rusher for three years in a row.

Senior split end Mark O'Donnell of Ellsworth, Iowa, wrapped up his career by setting a new pass receiving record. In two years with the Panthers after transferring from junior college, O'Donnell snared 104 aeriels and gained 1375 yards to make him Eastern's all-time leading receiver.

White, also prominent in the record book as one of Gustafson's pass targets, will be back next year. The speedster from Gary, Ind., caught 65 passes for 915 yards this season, including a single game high of 194 yards against Southwest Missouri, and has two more years of eligibility.

Departing senior Mike Grier, who ranks among national leaders in pass interceptions, his specialty, also set a school record. His 11 steals highlighted a good year for Eastern's secondary, which picked off 25 passes. Grier, of Corinth, Miss., was a defensive standout for two years with the Panthers after transferring from junior college.

Cross Country Team Sixth In Nationals

Eastern cross country coach Maynard (Pat) O'Brien has reason to view next year optimistically after his Panther harriers notched a sixth place finish in the NAIA national championship meet to close out the 1971 season.

The Panther showing was the second best in school history and followed by a week Eastern's fifth place finish in the NCAA College Division championships. Only the Eastern team of 1969, NCAA champions, finished higher in the NAIA field, which traditionally presents tougher cross country competition.

Basketball Boosted By Lettermen

Eastern basketball coach Don Eddy greeted seven lettermen and 14 other hopefuls as the 1971-72 page campaign got under way.

With two seniors, six juniors and two sophomores returning from the squad which posted an 18-9 record last year, Eddy believes he has the horses to make a challenge for a post-season NCAA tournament berth.

Major hurdles to be cleared in the course of the regular season will be Bradley University, DePaul University of Chicago, Kentucky Wesleyan, Indiana State, Central Michigan and Western Illinois.

Bradley and DePaul head several newcomers to this year's schedule, which also includes games with Northern Iowa, the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point, Winona State of Wisconsin, and the University of Wisconsin-Green Bay.

Heading the list of lettermen are 6-6 forward Scott Keeve (La-Grange) and 5-11 guard Gary Yoder (Arthur), who were the No. 1 and 2 scorers for the Panthers last season. Keeve posted a 16.0 per game scoring average and hauled down 10.5 rebounds per game to lead the Panthers in both departments. Yoder scored at a 12.1 clip and shot .868 from the charity line to wind up as the seventh best free throw shooter in the NCAA College Division.

Missing are 6-3 forward and captain Dave Sitton and 6-6 center Jim Kitchen, who graduated. Kitchen, who set a school record for rebounding as a junior, is now a graduate assistant with the Panthers and will help assistant basketball coach C. W. Scott with the junior varsity.

Also missing is 6-3 guard Tom Ferrell, last year's No. 3 scorer, who transferred to Marshall University.

Other lettermen on hand who saw action as regulars last season are 6-8 center Jim Borm (Dayton, Ohio), 6-6 forward Bill Thommen (Roanoke), 6-2 guard Larry Kelly (Odin), 6-4 forward Joe Milton (Benton)

Panthers Ranked

At press time Eastern's Panthers were ranked eighth in the weekly national College Division basketball poll distributed by the Associated Press. The Panther cagers claimed a 13-3 record for the season and an eight-game winning streak.

and 6-0 guard Mike Yates (Wabash, Ind.).

The lettermen will be challenged for starting berths by three upper-class newcomers, including 6-3 senior Pat Ryan (Decatur), who is back from the service after a previous stint with the Panthers. Other top candidates are 6-4 Willie Williams (Peoria), a transfer from Illinois State who was red-shirted last year, and 5-10 Herbie Leshoure (Champaign), a transfer from Parkland Junior College.

Only four freshmen have been called to practice, including two outstanding prep forwards from this area. They are 6-6 Rob Pinnell of Mattoon and 6-3 Jon Surma of Tuscola. The other frosh are 6-2 Fred Myers (Portsmouth, Ohio) and 6-4 Charles Peacock (Rockford).

Soccer Players To 'All-District'

Seven Eastern soccer players have been named to the NAIA All-District 20 team in a vote by coaches of the 11 soccer playing schools in the district.

First team honors went to defensemen Gerardo Pagnani and John Polacek and goalie Chuck Weisberg. Offensive players Tony Durante, Carmelo Rago, and Nick Markulin and defenseman Paul Engelmeyer were named to the second team.

Dr. Francis Palmer, a faculty member at Eastern since 1945, died Oct. 15 at his home of an apparent heart attack.

One of the best-known members of the faculty, Dr. Palmer served as publications advisor to the Eastern News and Warbler from 1946 until 1959, in addition to teaching journalism. He had returned to journalism teaching this fall for the first time in 12 years, teaching two news-writing courses (as well as one course in English). He was named as one of the top five teachers at Eastern in the 1970 Warbler.

Dr. Robert White, head of the Department of English, points out that Dr. Palmer "had so many interests that he could teach almost any course with competence."

Among these interests was the field of linguistics. He had published material on "Dialect Words in Johnson County, Iowa, and Coles County, Illinois," "Growth of American English in the Gold-Rush Days," and "Several Mennonite Americanisms," among many other studies, including "Herman Melville's Contributions to the English Language."

His non-academic interests were also varied. An avid stamp collector, he had amassed 1100 of the pre-cancelled variety, and lacked only two cities having a complete set for the state of Illinois.

In a somewhat different hobby,

Dr. Palmer at one time owned as many as 90 rabbits. His main interest in this hobby, which he brought to Eastern from Kansas, was in perfecting a better strain through selective breeding.

Other activities which caught his attention included antique glass and rock collecting.

Dr. Palmer was active in campus and civic affairs, serving as chairman of the Committee of 15 (predecessor of the Faculty Senate) in 1955-56, as a member of the Faculty Senate, as a member of the Board of Directors and publicity chairman of the local Red Cross chapter, as president of the EIU chapter of the American Association of University Professors (which he helped organize in Illinois), as vice president of the Charleston Kiwanis Club, as acting head of the English Department in 1967-68, and as co-founder and co-editor of the English Department's literary publication "Karamu."

He was a member of numerous journalistic, professional, and civic organizations as well.

Dr. Palmer held the B.A., M.A., and Ph.D. degrees from the University of Iowa, and was a member of Phi Beta Kappa.

Among his survivors are two sons, Bruce Palmer, '61, of Ft. Wayne, Ind.; and George Palmer, '58, of Wilmington, Del. Mrs. Palmer, the former Vira G. Marner, preceded him in death in 1969.

Dr. Charles Coleman Dead At 71

Dr. Charles Coleman, Lincoln scholar and member of the Eastern social science department from 1926 to 1960, died Jan. 11 at Charleston hospital.

Well-known for his historical research, Dr. Coleman wrote "Abraham Lincoln and Coles County, Illinois," "Historical Essays," "The Election of 1878," "The Lincoln-Douglas Debate," and "America's Road to Now," as well as numerous articles.

Perhaps the best-known Coleman book from the standpoint of alumni is "Eastern Illinois State College — Fifty Years of Public Service." This book, published in 1950, is still the primary reference source for historical material concerning Eastern.

Al Nevins, the noted historian and one of Coleman's former teachers, wrote in 1962, at the time of Dr. Coleman's retirement, that "a great band of people, young and old, east and west, will feel a momentary fellowship in pausing to salute a rare spirit." In the forward to the pamphlet, "Coles County in the Civil War," (which was edited by Dr. Lavern Hamand and dedicated to Dr. Coleman) Professor Emeritus Kevin Guinagh said of Dr. Coleman:

"As a boy, Charlie was exposed to a great variety of courses in manual arts. I have examined some of his carpentry, and nests of hammer marks bear witness to my conviction that the world of practical arts suffered no irreparable loss when Charlie's ambition shifted to the study of history.

"His interest in that subject goes back to the fifth grade . . . In those early days he decided that he would be a teacher of history, and his decision never wavered. He did his graduate work at Columbia University. While there, he was a reader for Professor Henry Johnson, who had gone to that institution from Eastern. In 1926, when Eastern needed a history teacher, Professor Johnson recommended only one candidate, Charlie Coleman.

"A host of former students remember him as an energetic, well-informed, kindly teacher."

Surviving Dr. Coleman are his widow, two sons, a brother, and three grandchildren.

Colorado's All-American Family

'57 Grad Named Mrs. U.S. Savings Bonds

Mrs. Jackie (Williams) Goreham, '57, has been named "Mrs. U. S. Savings Bonds" in a national competition, following the selection of the Goreham family this past summer as Colorado's "All-American Family."

"Mrs. U. S. Savings Bonds" was selected from the group of 50 wives of state "All-American Family" winners.

The Goreham family of Jackie, husband Don, daughter Beth, and son Andrew were given the "All-American" designation for Colorado after being nominated, filling out information forms, and being interviewed by an official of the U. S. Treasury Department, one of the sponsors of the competition.

The Goreham family was one of eight finalists for the national All-American Family title.

As "Mrs. U. S. Savings Bonds," Mrs. Goreham is scheduled to travel some 100,000 miles during the year in urging people to buy bonds. Her travels will cover the Far East, possibly Europe, many states, and the White House.

In commenting on the selection of the Goreham family as Colorado's "All-American Family," Jackie says that the family is not exceptional in any way, but is merely representative of many families in Colorado. Both parents say that family life is the most important aspect of their lives, although both are also active in a host of community activities.

"We do not feel that the hours we give working for others takes away from our family," says Jackie, "In fact, it strengthens our family unity as we realize how much we have and how unfortunate are some others around this world."

Mr. Goreham is the editor of two suburban newspapers, and associate editor of a third newspaper. Prior to moving to Colorado, he was in the printing and publishing business in St. Anne, Il. He is a journalism graduate of the University of Illinois.

Jackie, who majored in home economics at Eastern, still does substitute teaching in her major. Her favorite area is nutrition, having taught it for the American Heart Association in Illinois, and having given a number of talks on the subject. She reports that ten-year-old Beth is taking up sewing, and has won a blue ribbon for a clothing entry at the county fair.

Jackie concludes that "a representative family loves its home, its church, and its country, and is truly committed to the responsibilities that will uphold them—making this world a better place for their living been a part of it."

EIU Placement Office Still Personalized

Information concerning job openings comes from a number of sources. Normally, the Placement Office sends out 400 to 500 letters each year to companies who have recruited at Eastern before or who would logically benefit from doing so. The letters invite recruiters to schedule interviews on campus, to send notices of job needs, and to send information about their institutions. Included with the letters are recruiter information guides and summaries of the previous year's placement activities.

In addition, Knott and Jones like to visit schools, businesses, and various agencies to personally invite recruiters to make use of Eastern's placement facilities.

"The fact that we have a lot of Eastern graduates as school administrators, helps our teachers placement activities," Knott acknowledges. "They have a natural tendency to look to us for candidates." He says the same situation exists in the business world, "although the connection is not always as obvious."

The Eastern Placement Office has arranged for use of the University of Illinois computer printout of job vacancies compiled by the U of I placement office, and this constantly up-dated report is available to any registrant at the Placement Office.

Eastern's own report of job vacancies is produced weekly during the prime recruiting season and up-dated so that the status of any listed vacancy is no more than a week old trict. Mrs. Decker is the former Christy Bower, '71.

Judi Edwards, '71, married Jack B. Smith, Jr. this summer. They reside in Champaign, IL.

Robert A. Hildreth, '71, completed a 6-week training course in August under the ROTC program at Loring Air Force Base, ME. He is now working on his master's degree at A&M U in Texas under a fellowship. He and his wife reside in Bryan, TX.

(and often no more than a day old). "We have thought about going to computers," says Knott, "but I think we can give better, more individualized service without them unless the number of candidates grows significantly."

The credentials prepared by the Placement Office do not contain as much written information as in past years when there were fewer to prepare, but do include such things as personal information, academic background (including overall grade point average, but not grades for individual courses), student teaching evaluations where applicable, references from two faculty members selected by the candidate, recommendations from former employers where applicable, a listing of any administrative jobs held, and any graduate courses taken.

"We are currently sending out about 15,000 sets of credentials a year," Knott estimates. "There are fewer vacancies, but more candidates and more credentials every year."

In addition to keeping up credentials, the Placement Office also keeps individual files on every school and community in Illinois, where possible, and attempts are made to update the material (including salary schedules) every two years. Files are also kept for the more popular out-of-state communities.

The Placement Office has directories listing every school in nearly every state, as well as the Federal Career Directory. Miscellaneous materials from many government and private agencies, institutions, and organizations are also available.

The bulk of the work of preparing credentials, receiving and publicizing vacancy notices, and collecting informational materials is done by the civil service staff of four persons (five during the busiest time of year), plus about six student workers.

Two of the civil service staff members have been at Eastern more than ten years, and one more than two years. "I think that the experience and dedication of our secretarial staff is a significant factor in keeping our office efficient and helpful," Knott concludes.
